Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 26-50 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Applicant has amended the claims in the following manner:

- (i) claims 1-25 have been cancelled,
- (ii) new claims 26-50 have been written wherein the base claim contains all of the limitations of original claims 1 and 5,
- (iii) the structural definitions of R³ and R⁴ in the formula representative of (d2) have been changed such that they no longer embody alkoxy groups, and
- (iv) a proviso has been added that the entire system is devoid of silanes bearing two or more (at least two) alkoxy groups.

It is the final change with which the Examiner is particularly concerned. The proviso has the effect of excluding entirely from the invention any silane compound possessing multiple alkoxy groups yet there is no support for this amendment in the original disclosure as it does not particularly exclude this genus of compounds.

Art Unit: 1712

Applicant should note that this proviso should not be construed merely as a restatement of the structural condition of (d2). Indeed, it is much broader in scope than that. Had Applicant stated, for instance, "wherein (d2) may not contain more than one alkoxy group", this would have been acceptable language (albeit redundant insofar as alkoxy groups have already been excised from the definitions of R³ and R⁴).

New claim 26, the Specification, and original claims 1 and 5 on which claim 26 is largely based, employ the transitional phrase "contains" indicating that any other materials in addition to (a), (b), (c), (d1), (d2), and (e) may be incorporated into the system. It has been ruled that, the transitional term "comprising", which is synonymous with "including," "containing," or "characterized by," is inclusive or open-ended and does not exclude additional, unrecited elements or method steps. See, e.g., Genentech, Inc. v. Chiron Corp., 112 F.3d 495, 501, 42 USPQ2d 1608, 1613 (Fed. Cir. 1997) ("Comprising" is a term of art used in claim language which means that the named elements are essential, but other elements may be added and still form a construct within the scope of the claim.); Moleculon Research Corp. v. CBS, Inc., 793 F.2d 1261, 229 USPQ 805 (Fed. Cir. 1986); In re Baxter, 656 F.2d 679, 686, 210 USPQ 795, 803 (CCPA 1981); Ex parte Davis, 80 USPQ 448, 450 (Bd. App. 1948) ("comprising" leaves "the claim open for the inclusion of unspecified ingredients even in major amounts"). Among said materials would include silanes bearing at least two alkoxy groups since the original disclosure does not expressly require their absence.

Applicant is required to cancel the new matter, or amend claim 26 in a manner consistent with the premise that (d2) specifically may not contain at least two alkoxy groups. However, Applicant is reminded that either course of action will result in the reinstatement of the rejection over King et al. because, while the reference would no longer read on (d2), the claim states that (d1) may be used in lieu of (d2) and King still anticipates that aspect of the invention.

As an aside, Applicant argues the legitimacy of the § 103(a) rejection apparently on the ground that King and Lutz together do not teach all of the limitations of the claimed invention. That is, the combination does not disclose a composition “for making an impression”. It is noted, however, that the emphasized phrase is only a statement of intended use. Section 2112.02 of the MPEP provides direction as to how phrases such as this are to be treated: “If the body of a claim fully and intrinsically sets forth all of the limitations of the claimed invention, and the preamble merely states, for example, the purpose or intended use of the invention, rather than any distinct definition of any of the claimed invention’s limitations, then the preamble is not considered a limitation and is of no significance to claim construction. Pitney Bowes, Inc. v. Hewlett-Packard Co., 182 F.3d 1298, 1305, 51 USPQ2d 1161, 1165 (Fed. Cir.1999). See also Rowe v. Dror, 112 F.3d 473, 478, 42 USPQ2d 1550, 1553 (Fed. Cir. 1997) (“where a patentee defines a structurally complete invention in the claim body and uses the preamble only to state a purpose or intended use for the invention, the preamble is not a claim limitation”); Kropa v. Robie, 187 F.2d at 152, 88 USPQ2d at 480-81 (preamble is not a limitation where claim is directed to a product and the preamble merely recites a property inherent in an old product defined by the remainder of the claim). Therefore, the aforementioned phrase is not assigned weight in making a patentability determination. Ultimately, the issue is moot as Applicants have, for the time being, obviated King.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
